How the First Day and Evening

If indications give any lines leading to judgment then there is every reason to believe that the National Drill is a great suc cess. All that has been promised for it is gradually unfolding, and ere the week ex-pires it will be found that the event will prove one of the greatest ever known to this country, and one talked about in years to come. It was not expected all the troops would reach camp and quarters before noon, and there are a few straggling organizations now overflue.

Train after train brought in its human freight. The streets were alive with people, who not only plodded all day long, but were walking late into the night. At the camp ground all was bustle and confusion, but later in the day, when full military discipline was invoked, order was quickly catabilished, matters settled into systematic channels, and the regular programme of the first day was carried out to the letter.

CHOWDS AT THE DEPOTS.

DECORATED WITH PLAGS AND BUNTING, and in many instances great taste was displayed. The decorations added much to giving those thoroughfares a boilday appearance. "Your streets are the prettlest I have ever seen? was the salutation of a young Michigan soldier to a citizen. And this was only one of the number of compliments heard on all sides.

The capitol seemed to be the objective point of many of the visitors, and it was stated that not less than 4,000 people went to the top of the dome during the day. From that lofty point, by the aid of a good pair of opera glasses, camp "George Washington" and its habitants could be brought to the eye.

Horses, cabs, omnibuses, and wagons, both public and private, were seen in numbers. Everything seemed bustle and excitement.

"Dolna driving, hig business. Billet"

citement.

"Doing a driving big business, Billst" was asked a cab-man by a REPUBLICAN reporter. "You bet, I wish I had more cabs. Never had so much work since inauguration day."

The ceremony of PORMALLY OPENING THE CAMP

was simple. A few minutes before 12, the crowd which had congregated around headquarters, was cleared away by a squad of police. The Washington Light Infantry, headed by the band of the 5d artillery, marched up and formed a hollow square, the flag staff being the center.

Gen. Augur, accompanied by Gen. Ordway, Gen. Carnahan, Col. King, Capt. Oyster, and Chaplain Pyne then appeared. The chaplain stopped into the open space and offered up a prayer in which he invoked the blessing of the Almighty upon the camp, the officers and soldiers, the people, and the government of the United States. At the conclusion of the petition the flag was hauled into position while the band played "The Star Spangled Banner" and the troops saluted the colors.

GENERAL ORDERS ISSUED.

GENERAL ORDERS ISSUED. Gen. C. C. Augur, upon assuming com-mand, issued general orders governing the camp and movements of troops during the Drill, and the following aphouncing the

Major General Commanding. THE MILWAUKER CADET BAND

Major General Commanding.

THE MILWAUKER CADET HAND
remained on the ground and discoursed aweet music for some time to a very appreciative audience. There are thirty-five musicians in this, the only cadet band in existence; some of them are very diminutive, but their talent is undoubted.

Shortly after the beadquarter's flag was hoisted the staff officers went over to the heapitar and asked Miss Clara Barton if she would like the Red Crose flag to float from the staff in front of her tent. Everything was in readiness, so Miss Barton pulled on the halyards and the combination flag of the society—the stars and stripes and the red crose—floated in the breeze. On the guyropes were the Austrian, Danish, and Norwegian standards; these colors are from Miss Barton's collection of national flags, possibly the finest in the world. The ceremony was applanded by a large crowd.

The hospital force was thoroughly organized during the moraling and everything in that department moves smoothly. Dr. Susan Edson was appointed superincedent of nurses. Dr. Stanton has a medical ataff of eighteen and their duties have been assigned them. There is a regular system, by which it is so arranged, that a sufficient number of physicians will always be on the grounds. Two hospitals atewards are on duty; one was detailed by the Secretary of War, the other by the surgeon general. Everybody who wears the distinctive sign of the Red Cross Society seems to be provid of it, in fact it would not be beyond the bounds of truth if some one were to say that meny of the assistants—both medicos and nurses—were a trifle vain of their decoration. The badges are graded; surgeons have one kind, army nurses another, and graduates of their respective stations, the red cross, however, being on all of them.

Up to a late hour last night twenty-two patients had been treated, all successfully.

A VERY PLEASANT INCIDENT

A VERY PLRASANT INCIDENT occurred in camp yesterlay. The Louisjana Rifles had just finished dinner; in fact, were enjoying their dessert, when Lieut. Couturis called the boys to order, and, in a fow well-chosen remarks, presented a beautiful aword and belt to Capt.
Adams. The token was a very beautiful one, and was a complete surprise to the modest commander of the crack New Orleans company. The sword has two scabboards—one for fatigne work, oxydized, the other of bright burnished steel.

The crowd of visitors all day was simply immense, all conditions and classes of people being represented. In the afternoon
fen. Sheridan and his chief of staff, Col.
M. Sheridan, accompanied by ex-Gov.
Beveridge, of Illinois: Gen. Swaim, and a number of army officers, called on Gen.
Augur and paid their respects.

Two cadets from the Cayuga Lake Company acted, as orderlies at headquarters yesterday, as they have since Sunday morning. They have proven to be so efficient that their services will be continued until the clase of the camp.

The company

the first day was carried out to the letter.

Chowds at this depots were if anything larger than on Sunday, and many ladies did not hesitate to stand about the entrances just to see the soldiers come in. During the day as the trains arrived at the Baltimore and Potomac depot the crowds at Sixth street and Ponnaylvania avenue were augmented by hundreds of soldiers who whaled to see their rivals and get some "points." The variety of the uniforms, many of which were very attractive, added much to brighten the scene.

The crowd coming along with the traops was greater than on the preceding day. The trains came in sections, and each was heavily haden with passengers.

The scene about the office of the "committee on comfort" was an animated one. Thousands of questions were asked, with as many replies. The "guides," from constant reference, had pretty well memorized their books of reference, and it was astonishing to note the readiness with which they gave replies.

The stores, hotels, and dwellings on Pennsylvania avenue, on Seventh street, and F street were actions. General Representation of the secondary of people could be seen last evening going down Fourteenth and Hitteenth streets toward the, inclosed drill grounds, where the pyrorama, representing the battle between the Monitor and Merrimac, was to be given. At 8:30 the grand stands was half filled, and the other stands were partially covered by a mass of humanity. It was estimated that there were between even thousand and eight thousand people in the inclosure. The absence of the soldier boys was marked, but very few uniforms being seen. When the row of calcium lights were thrown upon the scene where the action was to take place on the opposite side of the inclosure, a water seem was displayed. At the right a light house appeared from what was to represent the Rip Rapa and to the center the walls and guns of Fortress Monroe arose from the water. To the left a rocky cliff was seen, from behind which there presently salled forth a war vessel of the old wooden type. This was to represent the Cumberland. The salls were set full, and were drawn taut by the breeze, giving it a decidedly natural appearance. Presently the Merrimae came steaming forth and GOING TO THE PYRORAMA.

JAMES R. CARRALAN,

Brigadier General, Adjutant General. To-day's programme will be as follows: Infantry company competitions, 10 to 2; zouave competition, 2:30, by the Keck Zouaves; cadet competition, 3:30; sabor drill by Milwaukee Battery at 4, followed by exhibition drill; dress parade, 5. Pyrorama at 8 o'clock.

steaming forth and with the wooden vessel. The fight was a hard one, the guus of each craft belching forth fiery volumes and heavy explosions lending to the realism of the scene. When the Cumberland had been disposed of after sundry manocuves the Congress, Rosnoke, and Minnesota, which were sailing on the bay, were engaged, and finally burned by the as yet invulnerable "Merrimae." The guns of the Fortress Moaroe were also brought into the action, and the fortress was attacked, which is not exactly in accordance with the historic facts in the case. Finally, when the confederate steamer had conquered everything there was on the bay, even to the burning of the fortress, there steamed to the scene the little "Monitor." It glided down quickly, but before the hot fight that was to take place between it and the "Merrimac" had got SOON ENGAGED IN BATTLE and blowing up of the turret. The speciators were amazed and hardly knew whether it was a part of the programme or not until the calcium lights were turned from the scene, leaving it in darkness. The fact that the fight had ended by giving the victory to the "Merrimae" rather reversed the historic account of the famous battle. It was by an extremely narrow eacape that the boy in the turret, where the explosion took place, saved himself by jumping through the port hole. He was but slightly burned. Thus the exhibit ended abruptly.

The pyrorams will be a successful form of amusement during the coming week. The accident of last evening was such as might happen at any time and the usual breaks of the first night were only to be looked for, as the piece had not been rehearsef since last summer.

ATTEMPT TO MURDER O'BRIEN.

HAMILTON, ONT., May 23.--There were about one thousand people at the Grand eral prominent members of the Hamilton had gone down to Niagara in the morning, accompanied the gentlemen on their branch of the Irish National League, who had gone down to Nisgara in the morning, accompanied the gentlemen on their tirp to this city. When the train arrived and the yestors made their appearance they were greeted with cheer after cheer. An address of welcome was presented on behalf of the local league to Mr. O'Brien, M. P., to welcome him to Hamilton. The address expressed gratitude for his services to Ireland, pain at the cowardly action of the intolerant bigots of a neighboring city in attempting his life, and trusting that he was now in a city where he would receive fair play. In conclusion the address says: "Our hearts are with you and your worthy chief, Mr. Charles Stewart Parnell, and the grand old man. W. E. Gladstone, in your noble fight for Ireland, and we trust that the day is not far distant when the long night of oppression shall pass away and give place to the dawn of a national self-government for the land we all love so woll."

An immense crowd blocked the street opposite the hotel, where Mr. O'Brien stepped up on the helcony and made a speech, thanking the people for their hearty welcome, expressing the hope that ere long, in place of having to come from Ireland to Canada to tell of woes of the Irish people, he would be able to invite Canadians to witness the peace and presperity of a people, flourishing under a parliament sitting at College Green, Dublin. The great roller rink, where the meeting was held, was crowded to the utmost capacity, and when O'Brien was introduced he was greeted with enthusiastic cheers. He referred to the recent assault to Ironon, and said that owing to that attempt on his life he was in great pain and public speaking became an arduous task. He thought there was no doubt that the success of his mission was demonstrated. All the charges against Lansdowne were fully proven, and the only arguments his friends would admit that his own defense, as shown through a narrow alley, where an unfriendly crowd had collected. EASY ENOUGH TO DO SO WHEN YOU KNOW HOW.

Fielding Errors Almost Lose the Game -The Wolverines Fail to Earn a Run -Ought to Have Been Shut Out-Racing Items of Interest.

The Washingtons met the famous Detroits yesterday at Capitol Park for the third time this season and defeated the Wolverines after a highly exciting ten inning contest by the close score of 7 to 0. Getzein was put in to pitch for the visitors, but at opportune moments his pretzel curves had no terror for the Statesmen and they batted his delivery at will. The visit-ing military from Michigan, who are here taking part in the National Drill, turned out in large numbers to wi tness the game and loud and prolonged were the demonstrations they made whenever the representatives from their state made a praiseworthy play. Their partisan efforts, how-ever, were but a drop in the bucket com-pared to the vociferous tumult occasioned by the Grand Rapid Guards, who were out townsman—Getzein—a glorious send off. No matter how far ahead the local club were, whenever their favored pitcher made a telling effort whereby the Detroits gained an advantage the Guards sent up the cry, "That's all right," True enough, it was "all right," but not for Watkins's

"That's all right." True enough, it was "all right," but not for Watkins's team, as on the contrary the spectators present in favor of the Senators, and they were many, after the last man in the tenth inning had been put out and Washington secured the victory, re-echoed the familiar phrase, "That's all right." The soldier box took their favorites' defeat good-naturedly, and when the contest ended joined the general multitude in a round of applause to the winners. Quest, the mascot of the Detroits, did not umpire the game, but in his stead Pearce officiated, and, perhaps, the impartial decisions of this gentleman had much to do with the Detroits' defeat. It is anotorious fact that Quest has aided the boys from the City of Straits no little in the many games he has acted as judge of play. Fearce, on the contrary, gave perfect satisfaction to all observers and fulfilled the arduous duties imposed upon him in an impartial manner. The contest opened with the bome team at the bat, as usual, and, despite the fact that Getzein had on his copper-toed shoes, the Statesmen batted out three carned runs. Carroll started off with a rattling clean hit to left field, atole second, went to third on Getzein's wild throw to second, and came home, after Schoch had been retired on Rowe's assist to first, on Hines's base hit. Hines also crossed the plate when Myers rapped the ball for two earned hases. Whitney went out on a fly to Thompson, but Mack and O'Brien came to the rescue, and, by hitting the sphere safely, Myers was enabled to score. This lead of three runs was further increased in the second inning by one run on Carroll's single, his steal to second, and Brouthers's error on Schoch's hard drive to first base. The Statesmen were not satisfied with this number of tallies, however, and in their half of the third inning still further increased their total, and earned two more runs on Myers gaining first base on five balls, and crossed the plate when O'Brien knocked the ball over the left-field fence among the freight cars for left-field fence among the freight cars for a home run.

Up to this point the Detroits had not succeeded in getting a man round the diamond, but in their half of the third Dunlap gained his first on a base hit, stole second, and scored on Crane's fumbled grounder off Rowe's bat. The score remained 6 to 1, in the home team's favor, until the last half of the seventh finning, when those of the speciators present in favor of the Washingtons felt anxious, as the Detroits made four runs. Hanlon lead off by gelting to first on Myers's bad error, stole second, and crossed the line on outs of Ganzel and Getzeln. Then Dunlap stirred up cathuslasm by batting a slow pitched ball for three bases, Rowe drove him across the plate on a base hit, and by Dan Brouthers sent Rowe arround by making a home run on slow handling of Rowe drove him across the plate on a base hit, and big Dan Brouthers sent Rowe around by making a home run on slow handling of the ball by Hines and Crane. This set the Detroits only one run behind the Senators, and the crowd began to feel anxious. The eighth inning resulted in a cipher for both sides, as did also the ninth for the Washingtons. The Detroits then went in for the list half of the ninth, and caused tremendous excitement by making the score a tie. This run was gained solely on errors, and emphatic was the condemnation visited upon the unfortunate men who made the misplays. "A ten inning contest" murnured the crowd, and with intense stillness did they wait the result. Mack, the first striker, ran to first safely on Rowe's error, went to third on O'Brien's safe hit between short stop and third, and scored the winning run on Dunlap's fumble of Crane's grounder. In the Detroits half of the tenth inning they struggled hard for victory, but it was no use, as the Senators were too much for them, and they had to take their mcdicine with a good grace, the first time in a number of days.

The Washingtons made numerous errors, those on the part of Myers, Donnelly, and Crane being most disastrous, but while not up to proper form in the field, what was lacking in that respect was made up with the stick, and the way in which O'Brien, Myers, and Carroll pounded the sheepskin must have been disheartening to the Wolverines. The Detroits played a good fielding game, but Whitney kept them guessing at the bat, and for a wooder the sluggers of the League did not win by their heavy hitting. The attendance was 1,901. Score:

LONDON, May 23 .- In the house of commons this afternoon Sir James Ferguson, parliamentary secretary for the foreign parliamentary secretary for the foreign office, intimated that no reply had yet been received from the United States government to Lord Salisbury's dispatch of Mar. 24, in measures, he said, would be adopted for the approaching fisheries sesson as were in force approaching issueries serson as were in force last season. The government would use these powers with moderation, and that United States vessels would avoid making it necessary to call them into requisition. Mr. Balfour, chief secretary for Ireland, replying to Mr. Gladstone in the house of commons to-night, promised to procure during the recess a return of Irish agrarian crimes to the end of May. He added that during the recess a return of Irish agrarian crimes to the end of May. He added that since the indictment of the crimes bill there had been a marked improvement in the condition of Ireland.

Mr. W. H. Smith, first lord of the treasury, said that the government's views regarding amendments to the crimes bill were that those amendments which related to intimidation should be considered and decided upon in committee. The other amendments were not of a serious nature until they came to Sir Charles Russell's amendment for the omission of the subsection relating to the Whiteboy acts. The government would withdraw that subsection for the present, reserving the right and power to restore it at the report stage.

Mr. Timothy Healy said the government's statement was very unsatisfactory. He suggested that the fill be recommitted for the consideration of the Whiteboy clause, instead of an alteration being made with the speaker in the chair.

Mr. Balfour said that in no case would the Whiteboy acts be embodied in the bill, but it was proposed to add any offense caused by the Whiteboy acts where such action might be thought desirable. It was a question, however, whether there were any such offenses.

Mr. Healy, Will such amendment, if introduced, be moved with the speaker in the chair?

Mr. Balfour. Yes.
